'Well, we have some very fine babies here. What kind does she want?" was the reply, given in such a tone that the reporter expected her to reach up to some shelf and hand down babies for selection.

The reporter explained that a boy was desired, about a year old. The young woman replied that she had none in stock of that age, but volunteered to show the visitor 'a beautiful boy, just four months old," and disappeared from the room, returning soon after with a charming, blue-eyed infant, which she desired the reporter to hold, in order to feel its weight.

Handling it with as much grace as possible, considering his inexperience, the reporter returned it to its nurse and entered into the question of its marentage.

'His father is a prominent Brooklyn lawyer, and the mother the daughter of wealthy and respectable people in New York.

'Of course they are not married, although we do sometimes have children of married parents, one of which we have adopted ourselves, being the infant son of a woman whose husband deserted her shortly after marriage."

Then she again left the room and got a black-eyed, smiling infant, eight months old, dressed in neat white clothes.

"What are your charges?"

With such cards in his hand Marcus feels capable of playing the limit. His address from April 7 to the 25th of the current month is Politeana Argentino, Buenos Aires. He will then go to Montevideo for a week. The whole of June and a week of July will be put in at Rio Janeiro. With two actresses like Bernhardt and Hading in rivalry the enthusiasm of South American temperaments will have something to feed on. Coquelin is no bad third in such a trio. New York will greet them with delight when they appear on the metropolitan stage.

At the meeting of the inside men it was arranged to obtain a list of all the so-called "scabs" now employed in the pool breweries, and print and brand them as traitors to the cause of labor.

Lists of all the saloons that sell pool beer and those that keep union beer are being prepared and will soon be issued.

At the Brewers' Exchange it was declared that the lockout has been successful and that the bosses have full control of all the pool breweries, independent of the unions or any organized body.

Rumors are current to-day that the ale and porter brewers will not renew the agreement made in 1886 with the Knights of Labor organization known as the Ale and Porter-Brewers' Association. The agreement does not contain any clause fixing its expiration. President Miles, of the United States Brewers' Association, is one of the leading ste and porter brewers, and is said to be opposed to renewing the contract, and proposes that the same course be pursued as in the case of the lager beer brewers.

WHERE WAS IT STOLEN:?

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION ABOUT THE $41,000 BANK-NOTE ROBBERY.

President Hoey Insists that the Money Was Never Delivered in the Adams Express Company's Office, and that the Sparlous Package Was Substituted Before It Got There-Pinkerton Examines the Raliread

That $41,000 in national bank bills should nysteriously disappear in broad daylight and while in custody of officials exercising the closest vigilance is a circumstance which surrounds the American Exchange Bank's loss with unusual interest.

The amount is a fortune in itself, and it was in the most compact form for the thief's convenience, with no telltale marks on it to make its negotiation unsafe or difficult.

The task of finding out who has possession of the stolen package is stirring Pinkerton's and Inspector Byrnes's detectives to their best efforts and is deeply exercising the officials of the bank and of the Adams Express Company.

Up to the present time not the slightest clue to the thief has been obtained. All that can be said is that two clerks of the American Exchange Bank took a sealed package said to contain the $41,000 to the office of the express company at 59 Broadway, that it was receipted for there and locked up in a safe which was straightway sent to Washington, and that when the packare was turned over to the Treasury officers the package was found to contain, not $41,000 in good money, but a roll of coarse $41,000 in good money, but a roll of coarse brown paper.

Where this great sleight-of-hand trick—worthy of Medium Diss Debar herself—was performed, none can at present tell. The employees of the bank and of the express company are being examined to-day, and the testimony of the Washington express clerks has been taken by Mr. Robert A. Pinkerton. The officials of the respective institutions show a not unnatural but rather amusing anxiety to throw the responsibility for the company to the express company, says he thinks the bogus package was brought to the office by the bank officials, while Vice-President Clarke, of the bank, declares there is no doubt the money was stolen either in the express office or while in transit to Washington.

Robert A. Pinkerton, who returned to the city this morning, said he could give no information till the thief was caught or the package was found.

It is believed that the statement as to the robbery having occurred in Washington was given out in order to lull the culprit into a false security and enable the detectives to work in this city with a better chance of Five Counterfelters Julled.

ALTOONA, Pa., May 7.-A wholesale arrest of counterfeiters took place at Licydaville, near this city. Saturday. Five persons were arrested, four of whom are charged with counterfeiting and one of whom are charged with counterfeiting and one with tampering with the mails. Detective Simpson, of Lloydsville, and an assistant United States Marshai were the officers who effected the arrests. Isaac Edmonson, the first one arrested, had a lot of counterfeit money in his possession. It is presumed he gave information which led to the arrest of the others, in whose possession was found a box containing dollars and haif dollars and a complete set of counterfeiting tools. John Myers, charged with tampering with the mails, it is believed in the interest of the counterfeitiers, was also arrested at Lloydsville. He is a man who has hitherto enjoyed an excellent reputation.

THIRSTY SUNDAY IN JERSEY.

New York Profits by the Operation of the New High-License Law.

NEW YORK, MONDAY, MAY 7, 1888.

People in New Jersey had a good deal to say to-day about the first Sunday under the new High-License Excise law. The effect of the law was very marked. It was the dryest Sabbath ever known to Jerseymen, and the cities and towns all over the State were alnost as quiet as New England hamlets.

All the saloons in Jersey City were closed and side-doors were barred. A noted resort that had not been closed on a Sunday for seventy years was shut up tight yesterday, and thirsty men who rapped on its windows as a last resort were disappointed because the spirits did not make reply to their raps.

The Law and Order League had members and special private detectives scouring the city in an endeavor to find violators of the new law. The closing of the saloons in Jersey City yesterday must have stopped the transfer of at least $50,000 from the pockets of the patrons of saloons to the wallets of the dealers in liquor and beer. The summer gardens in the suburbs of Jersey City were open as usual, but only temperance driuks were sold.

A deckhand on a North River ferryboat said to-day to an Evening World reporter: "Things were changed about yesterday, Jerseymen had to go to New York to get their beer. Our boats were crowded during the afternoon by Jerseymen on their way to New York to get their Sunday beer. This new law, if it is enforced, will keep a million dollars out of Jersey City this summer."

It was a dry day in Elizabeth. A few places were kept open on the sly, but men had to jump over fences and go through cellars to get a drink.

Paterson was a very sober city. The resorts of Germans were specially watched by that had not been closed on a Sunday for lars to get a drink.

Paterson was a very sober city. The resorts of Germans were specially watched by the Church Temperance people. The Germans who are accustomed to have their music and beer on Sundays were loud in their denunciations of the law.

John Hughes ran for eight hours this morning with something like his old-time "lep." Dan Hesty, Dan Dillon and E. C. Moore are looked upon as a first class field, and condidence is expressed in them. Dan Herty, it will be remembered, was second to Albert in the recent race.

Jimmie Albert (Catheart) and his pretty wife occupied a box during the first half of the night, and when their identity became known they were cheered lustily, the plucky Philadelphian bowing and smiling his acknowledgment of the salute.

At 6.58 o'clock Littlewood scored his fiftieth mile; and received the appliance of the spe tators. This is four and a half miles short of George Hazael's record, made in 1879. Hegelman passed his forty-fifth mile post at this time. Cartwright's score was post at this time. Cartwright's score was 48 miles 3 laps at this moment, and Hegel-man's score was better than that made in the February go-as-you-please by two miles. Peter Golden astounded the o'd heads this

Peter Golden astounded the o'd heads this morning by reversing in the third hap of his forty-third mile and travelling for a mile in the direction opposite to that followed by the rest of the peds. It was the first time that it had been done since the race of 1881.

Anton Strokel, the hollow-eyed woebegone Austrian of the last race, drew No. 13 in the allottment of places, and incontinently withdrew from the race. That unlucky thirteen was to Strokel worse than the beer, sauerkraut, pickles and milk of his last race.

walkers were all out, and were pegging away on their weary tramp, the leaders all looking fresh and determined, and the majority of the stragglers tired and footsors.

Littlewood, the plucky Englishman, had kept up a steady trot for more than an hour and was in the van, closely followed by Cartwright, who seemed determined not to let his opponent get too far in the lead.

The "Lepper" was also doing good work. He seemed to be in fine condition. Noremac, Herty and Golden were showing up in excellent form.

Gus Guerrero did not seem to be trying to break any records by the leisurely way in which he strolled around the track.

Two other pedestrians who were doing good work were Moore and Burns, the Elmira boy who raced the horses in Chicago four years ago and beat them. He is backed by Steve Brodie for a good place in the present race.

One of the amusing incidents of the morning was the weakening of Howard, the colored man from Atlantic City, N. J. He had managed to make torty miles, but at 10.30 he was so lame and footsore that he was ready to give up. He is a devout Christian and a pillar of the colored church at Atlantic City.

"I done committed a great sin to go into distrace." he said to his trainer as he went into his tent. "For God's sake let me get home, and I'll nover do so again."

Despite his tears and entreaties, however, he was obliged to go to the track again, and as he imped around the enclosure his face had a wee-begone expression that was comical as well as pathetic.

Between 11 o'clock and noon Hughes kept up his remarkable pace, only stopping occasionally to sponge his head at the water barrel near the score stand. He showed no signs of fatigue, while the two Englishmen, Littlewood and Cartwright, frequently stopped running and paced for several laps. The Lepper gained upon them both steadily, and the pluck and endurance which he showed was rewarded by liberal applause which followed him all around the ellips.

Parson Tilly was fagged out early in the morning, but he kept the track holding a wet sponge to his head as he went around.

FISHING FOR KERR JURORS. The Defendant Holds a Levee While the Work Goes On.

The fifth day of fishing for jurors to try Thos. B. Kerr for bribery opened this morning with seven of the necessary twelve landed in the box. It found, as usual, the defendant sitting at the head of the table reserved for his counsel, intensely interested in the proceedings and as ruddy of countenance as ever. Hts chief counsel, Congressman Cockran, was late and ex-Judge Davis assisted is disposing of the two remaining talesmen of the second panel. Each had decided opinions with reference to the guilt of the defendant, and one could not possibly believe the testimony of an informer.

not possibly believe the testimony of an informer.

Both were excused and the third panel was called by Clerk Walsh, and its members put through the ordeal.

Counsellor Frank Dupignac, one of the lawyers who will defend James A. Richmond, on trial for bribery, dropped into the courtroom to see how the case was progressingland to obtain points which will be serviceable in the case of bis client.

Defendant Kerr held a sort of levee during the examination of talesmen. Among those to call and skake his hand were President Maxwell, of the Stuyvesant Deposit Company; E. Frank Coe, his millionaire bondsman, and Col. Geo. Bliss.

An hour was consumed in a fruitless endeavor to secure juror number eight, but all of the gentlemen called tripped on their opinions concerning the guilt of the jointly indicted bribers and bribe-takers, or on their inability to believe the testimony of informers.

One of them, John Ullyett, a restaurant keeper at 738 Eighth avenue, claimed to have known Mr. Kerr eighteen years, and would not believe an informer under any circumstances. Mr. Cockran could not qualify him, much as he would have liked to.
